State of Louisiana House Concurrent Resolution 67

REPORT ON SPAN OF CONTROL

SUMMARY OF REQUEST

Pursuant to House Concurrent Resolution 67 of the Regular Session of the Louisiana Legislature, the Department of State Civil Service (SCS) has issued this report detailing the requested information on span of control, also known as supervisor to staff ratios.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This report is a summary of research SCS conducted on span of control. Our research illustrates two key points:

1. There is no universal definition of span of control
2. There is no universal optimal span of control ratio

SCS does not mandate state agencies meet an optimal span of control or dictate a formal definition of calculating span of control. Each state agency independently manages its span of control in a manner that is most efficient and effective in achieving their individual missions. To follow are a number of ways agencies define span of control:

1. Top administrators to all other employees
2. All first line supervisors (supervisory group 1ⁱ) to all nonsupervisory employees
3. All managers (supervisory groups 2 and 3ⁱⁱ) to all other employees
4. All supervisory positions (supervisory groups 1, 2, and 3) to all other employees
5. All employees who conduct Performance Evaluations (PES) to those who do not

As stated, it is important for agencies to clearly define which groups of employees are counted in span of control ratios. For example, at the Louisiana Department of Public Safety & Corrections – Corrections Services, a Corrections Lieutenant is categorized as a supervisory job title and in some instances may only supervise inmates. In this scenario, the incumbent of this position would not conduct annual employee performance evaluations and would not be counted using the PES rater method for calculating supervisor to subordinate ratios. However, this position would be counted using different methods such as categorizing jobs by level of work and supervisory groups.

After a review of the explanations received from each agency regarding the 1:1 ratio, it was determined that most cases were due to a valid reason such as the person supervising wasn't in a supervisory title and therefore not required to supervise. Other explanations demonstrated that it made business sense to have a 1:1 relationship or that over time positions were lost through attrition and the ratio decreased. Several positions reported as supervising more than one employee but at the time of Performance Evaluations, one or more of the positions was vacant. A number of agencies had already restructured to address the span of control.

INTRODUCTION

In the 2016 Regular Session House Concurrent Resolution 67 was passed to urge and request the Department of State Civil Service to review the span of control of supervisors in state government and to report its finding and recommendations to the House and Senate governmental affairs committees and the Joint Legislative Committee on the Budget no later than November 15, 2016, specifically:

“In 2016 the legislative auditor reviewed this issue and indicated that sixteen percent of supervisors in state government supervised only one staff person. Some of these situations may be appropriate in certain small offices, but may not be appropriate in other operations. The state of Louisiana is undergoing a very difficult budget period and needs to ensure that the state government is operating as efficiently and effectively as possible. The legislature of Louisiana urges and requests the Department of State Civil Service to review the span of control of supervisors in state government and to report its findings and recommendations, including specific explanations of each situation involving one supervisor to one staff.”

DEFINITION OF SPAN OF CONTROL

Span of control has various definitions, thus there is no universal definition of span of control used by all entities. Span of control is commonly defined as the number of direct reports to a manager or supervisor. There is no single best number or optimal span of control. Broad (more subordinates per supervisor) and narrow (fewer subordinates per supervisor) spans of control each have their advantages and are appropriate in different circumstances. An article by Richard S. Sperling, CCP, Sperling HR, in the July 2012 issue of Workspan lists 10 Factors to Consider in Determining Span of Controlⁱⁱⁱ:

1. Lead, manage or supervise. In general, you can supervise more direct reports than you can manage: lead more because they can be more independent and you can delegate more decisions; supervise more because the work is less complex and usually is guided by processes or systems.
2. Required Awareness of direct reports' work. The more you need to be aware, the fewer direct reports you can manage. The less you need to be aware in detail (the more you can delegate decisions), the more people you can manage.
3. Complexity and diversity of subordinates' work. Routine work permits broader spans; complex work requires narrower spans; common/similar work permits broader spans; diverse work requires narrower spans.
4. Variability of work and situations. More predictable work (fewer variations and exceptions) allows broader spans.

5. Need for integration of direct reports' work. Integrating the work among direct reports or with other organizations reduces the span that can be managed.
6. Skill and competency levels. Broader spans require more skills and experience from supervisors/managers and direct reports.
7. Overall size of the organization. Smaller organizations may have narrower spans if they are functionally diverse, need leaders for the various functions, and still have relatively few positions.
8. Availability of systems, technology, processes, rules. These tools enable broader spans because they provide employees with guidance and direction for normal situations. The supervisor or manager can be less directly involved in those situations and focus on the less frequent exceptional situations.
9. Geographic dispersion and need for face-to-face meetings. The more dispersed the workforce and the greater the need for face-to-face meetings, the narrower the span that can be managed.
10. Required interaction of manager with higher levels in the organization, peers, and/or customers in addition to direct reports. The more time managers are required to spend interacting outside their organization, the fewer direct reports they can effectively manage.

LOUISIANA LEGISLATIVE AUDITOR FINDINGS AND METHODOLOGY:

The Louisiana Legislative Auditor's analysis of LaGov HCM data in 2016 reported that in executive branch agencies only 16% of supervisors in state government supervised only one staff member.

The Legislative Auditor identified the following methodology that was used to determine this percentage:

- The Legislative Auditor's office ran an initial statewide ZP117 Evaluation Report data pull. Some records (466) were eliminated because they did not contain the appraiser information or they (3,613) were associated with agencies that were outside the scope, e.g., boards, commissions, housing authorities, higher education, and retirement systems. In the end, a total of 31,023 PES records (reduced from 35,102) were used in the final analysis. Of the 7,038 raters it was found that 1,135 rated only one staff equaling sixteen percent.

State Civil Service conducted an analysis of this data received from the Legislative Auditor's Office. The official file was labeled Supervisor to Staff Analysis Based on FY15 PPR. After review it was determined that running the ZP117 and counting the number of appraisers that rated only one staff may not reflect an accurate calculation of span of control in the executive branch; specifically due to the fact that the report contained inconsistent data. There were several things in the data that potentially lead to misstating that only 16% of supervisors in state government supervised only one staff member. For example:

- Of the 1,135 raters that rated one staff, over 300 of them do not participate in a State Civil Service Supervisory group or supervisory title and are therefore not required to supervise. Many nonsupervisory titles such as Administrative Coordinator and Attorney 4 supervise and conduct an evaluation on a single employee because they serve as leadworkers in the section and it is what works best for the agency.

- Further review of the data in conjunction with the agency revealed that there were numerous entry errors made at the agency level that equated to bad data. One example of this is the reporting of Gary Gremillion #37515 at DOC as rating one staff. The actual rater on this record was DCFS Employee Jocelyn Hankel #67515. DCFS made a data entry error and entered #37515 which is the DOC employee, making it look like the DOC employee rated one staff.

LOUISIANA STATE CIVIL SERVICE FINDINGS AND METHODOLOGY

As mentioned throughout the report, there is no standard formula for calculating span of control, nor is there a single standard when determining the optimal span of control. Below, State Civil Service has calculated span of control using various methods, all yielding different results.

Method #1 – Comparing the number of classified employees considered supervisors and the number of classified employees considered staff as determined by the State Civil Service Level of Work to categorize classified job titles.

Level of Work		Total # of Classified Employees	Staff & Supervisors	Span of Control
1	Entry	3795	28797	1:3.7
2	Experienced	10263
3	Advanced	13447
4	Dual Career Ladder	455
5	Program Manager	837
6	Supervisor	4863
7	Manager	1987
8	Administrator	887
9	Executive	9

Method #2 – Comparing the number of first line supervisors (those in SCS Supervisory Group 1) to all non- supervisory employees.

Supervisory Group 1 Employees	Non-Supervisory Employees	Span of Control
5603	28626	1:5.1

Method #3 – Comparing the number of managers (those in SCS Supervisory Group 2 and 3) to all other employees.

Supervisory Group 2 and 3 Employees	All Other Employees	Span of Control
2314	34229	1:14.7

Method #4 – Comparing the number of all supervisory positions (those in SCS Supervisory Group 1, 2, and 3) to all non-supervisory employees.

Supervisory Group 1, 2 and 3 Employees	Non-Supervisory Employees	Span of Control
7917	28626	1:3.6

Method #5 – Comparing the number of PES raters to the number of PES Evaluations conducted.

PES Raters	PES Evaluations Conducted	Span of Control
7038	31023	1:4.4

All data was compiled from the SCS Super Pay Plan File and La Gov HCM ZP117 and is inclusive of all agencies, not just the 20 majors.

STATE PRACTICES

In October 2016, a survey on span of control was disseminated to various states throughout the country via the National Association for State Personnel Executives (NASPE). We received responses from 11 states. The overwhelming majority do not track span of control, nor do they have any type of legislative mandates to do so. Of the 11 responses, eight states do not formally track span of control. Only Iowa, Oregon and Virginia formally track span of control. Also, Oregon is the only state with a legislative mandate. Virginia tracks span of control and reports its outcomes every performance cycle, but there is no legislative mandate.

State	Do you track span of control?	What is your ratio and how do you define it?	Do you have legislative mandates regarding ratios?
Alabama	No	No ratio	No
Connecticut	No	No ratio	No
Florida	No	No ratio	No

Iowa	Yes	Target is 1:15; defined as managers to director reports	No
Montana	No	No ratio	No
New Mexico	No	No ratio	No
Oklahoma	No	No ratio	No
Oregon	Yes	1:10.53	Yes
Pennsylvania	No	No ratio, but encourage no smaller than 1:3 span of control.	No
Virginia	Yes	Ratio is 1:4.1. This is calculated as the number of employees who do not evaluate performance divided by the number of those who do.	No
Washington	No	No	No

FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Since there is no universal standard for defining span of control, each agency must determine the appropriate definition of span of control for their workforce and provide that definition when reporting span of control ratios. There will be variation in span of control ratios which is attributable to the differing diversity, complexity, volume, and scope of work within occupations. There are many factors that are instrumental in determining an optimal span of control for an agency and there are numerous reasons why a manager or supervisor may supervise only one staff. Appendix A provides the agency explanation for each instance of a 1:1 ratio. Reasons include:

- The agency staff is small but the mission has a large scope with complex work.
- The agency is restructuring after the loss of positions due to budget cuts.
- The agency has rank and file staff such as the Department of Public Safety & Corrections – Corrections Services where the Corrections Colonel delegated the performance evaluations to a subordinate staff.
- The positions supervise unclassified or contract personnel that do not require performance evaluations.

- The position supervises multiple staff but there were vacancies at the time of performance evaluation.

In July 2015 State Civil Service recentralized the allocation of position descriptions. This has helped in the reduction of increasing layers of management. While this is not a cost saving measure, as anomalies arise, State Civil Service is working with the agencies to eliminate those areas where a supervisor or manager may have only one subordinate.

Looking forward State Civil Service does not recommend a universal span of control. Agencies in conjunction with State Civil Service will need to decide what their optimal span of control should be for various jobs and analyze these areas and the nature of the jobs. State Civil Service will continue to monitor span of control through the administration of the classified pay plan. State Civil Service is currently in the process of reviewing the classification plan to see if a reduction in job titles is feasible. Reducing the number of job titles may reduce the number of supervisory and managerial titles thus reducing the ability to increase layers of management that may result in a 1:1 ratio.
